Are you feeling devastated from disappointment in love, when you really want to be happily partnered in a loving relationship? Before this work, Jennifer found herself repeatedly in relationships that weren't right for her, and then spending years getting over them. Yet all the while, she felt her chances for having a family slipping away because she was wasting time stuck in the past, and had closed her heart to new love.

Jennifer started as a Calling in "The One" Coach supporting singles to find love, and then became a Conscious Uncoupling Coach as well, because on your way to finding love, the quicker you let go of 'Not The Ones', the sooner you can get back on track to manifesting happy, healthy love.

Having lived in Italy many years, she speaks Italian, and previously taught English as a Second Language, so welcomes international clients. She's also a visual artist, and plays violin.

Jennifer holds a space of profound compassion for clients feeling confused and alone at the end of a relationship. She can guide you through the heartache of disappointment, and support you to gain the insights you need, so you are free to move forwards and create the happiness in love you truly desire.
